Iris Data Services, the leader in eDiscovery managed services, has hired Daniel Gold to be a Sales Engineer Director.

Kansas City, Missouri (PRWEB) July 16, 2014 -- Iris Data Services, the leader in eDiscovery managed services, has hired Daniel Gold to be a Sales Engineer Director.

Gold will be dedicated to providing client consulting and devising effective managed services strategies. Iris Data Services has set the standard for eDiscovery managed services with a suite of products that includes Iris ARC™, giving law firms and corporations a private Relativity® environment for a fixed monthly fee.

"Daniel's successful industry experience and passion for eDiscovery education will be a key addition to our team," said Damon Goduto, Iris' Co-Founder and Senior Vice President of Sales. "Our managed services clients will greatly appreciate Daniel's personalized approach to delivering outstanding customer service."

"I am thrilled to join the leading eDiscovery managed services company in the country as a Director in the Sales Engineer Group," said Daniel Gold. "I look forward to working with this talented team and continuing the work Iris has done for law firms and corporations around the globe."

About Daniel Gold

Daniel Gold has been in the legal industry for over a decade. He started out as a judicial law clerk for a Superior Court Judge and went on to be Plaintiff's lawyer, helping those who needed a zealous advocate. Gold is recognized as an expert in electronic discovery and litigation support. As a Director in the Sales Engineer group at Iris Data Services, Daniel advises with law firms and corporate legal departments on the complexity of eDiscovery and benefits of managed services. Daniel also helps educate about advancements in litigation technology through consulting, writing and public speaking at trade conferences. Prior to working for Iris, Daniel spent seven years as a Litigation Specialist for LexisNexis. He received his J.D. from Syracuse University and his B.S. from Ithaca College. Daniel can be contacted at dgold(at)irisds(dot)com.
